■ Goal Setting:

Before starting with the recipes, define your goal — do you want to gain weight or lose it?

This will help you choose the recipes that suit you best.

■ Calorie Control:

- If your goal is weight loss, choose low-calorie recipes or reduce portion sizes. Focus on high-protein, high-fiber meals to help you feel full for longer.
- If your goal is weight gain, use higher-calorie ingredients such as nuts, healthy oils, and avocado, and add snacks between main meals.

■ Recipe Adjustment:

You can modify the ingredients of the recipes according to your needs. For example, replace white flour with oat or almond flour for a low-carb option, or add honey and nuts to increase calorie content.

■ Progress Tracking:

Try keeping notes about your recipes and their effect on your weight and energy, then adjust your plan according to your results.
